[Proceedings]

MR. HARWICK: This is John Harwick and I am counsel for several judgment creditors in the above-captioned matter. This was an adjourned collection deposition of Chet Stojanovich and his related companies, which originally was scheduled for Monday and was adjourned to today's date at 1:00 p.m. pursuant to the belated request of Mr. Stojanovich who did not appear at the Zoom deposition when originally scheduled.

He acknowledged receipt of the subpoena and he actually read portions of the subpoena on the phone call that I had with him after the record was closed and the deposition that he did not show up for.

He indicated that he would be available today at 1:00, Thursday, April 1st, to continue or to perform the subpoenaed deposition to aid and enforce our federal court judgments. And I provided him with a new Zoom link via Federal Express letter, via e-mail and also via text message.

Again, I called him this morning to remind him. His voicemail was full. I also texted him again on his phone number that he has given me, which I will read into the record so we have it, (301)824-3903. And, again, I've called him while we've been waiting for 20 minutes here. He has not answered his phone nor responded to the text messages that I sent to him. So, we will be making a motion for contempt, to hold him in contempt at the same time try and get his compliance and aid, his compliance not only for sitting for a deposition but to producing the documents that we've demanded that be produced that also hadn't been produced.

So, with that we'll close the record.
